San Diego Humane Society Allows Walk-In Adoptions for First Time in 15 Months Normal Operations Begin to Resume Post-Pandemic.

SAN DIEGO — After more than a year of appointment-only, outdoor services, San Diego Humane Society is opening its doors to the public and offering walk-in adoptions once again.

“We’re thrilled to welcome people into our buildings again,” said San Diego Humane Society president and CEO Dr. Gary Weitzman. “Our staff and volunteers did a great job adapting during the pandemic with an appointment-based adoption system. It worked and it allowed for a safe way to continue to find homes for our animals. But nothing can replace the joy that comes from walking through the adoption gallery and finding your new family member.”

To celebrate welcoming guests back indoors, San Diego Humane Society is offering a special promotion for kitten adoptions. During the Become Smitten with a Kitten campaign, sponsored by Petco Love, kittens can be adopted for only $25 through June 30! Since kittens are better in twos, you can bring home a second for just $5.

San Diego Humane Society currently has more than 180 adorable, adoptable kittens in its care — and more arrive every day. This adoption promotion will enable the organization to care for more than 6,000 kittens this year alone.
